

HOPE FOR THE WARRIORS: A BEACON OF SUPPORT AND HOPE FOR MILITARY FAMILIES

Robin Kelleher, CEO and Co-founder of Hope For The Warriors (HOPE)

Robin Kelleher, CEO and co-founder of Hope For The Warriors, shares the inspiring journey and vision of an organization deeply rooted in military family values. Founded in 2006 at Marine Corps Base Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, Hope For The Warriors was born out of the firsthand experiences of military families who witnessed the profound impact of war on service members and their loved ones. As a Marine spouse, Kelleher felt a profound calling to support her community, leading to the creation of an organization that would extend its reach to military families across all fifty states.

The organization envisions a future where those touched by military service can successfully transition back to civilian life, empowered by comprehensive support programs that emphasize health, wellness, and community integration.

Hope For The Warriors serves post-9/11 service members, veterans, spouses, caregivers, and military families, driven by a mission to restore a sense of self, family, and hope. The organization remains grounded in its original family values, expanding both the scope of programs offered and the breadth of individuals it assists. Its leadership, composed of combat veterans and military family members, reflects its commitment to integrity and honor, aligning with the noble cause it champions.

In 2024, Hope For The Warriors is set to host its 15th Annual Hope For The Warriors Celebrity Golf Invitational, a testament to the organization's community-centric approach. Scheduled for August 24-26 at River Landing in Wallace, NC, the event promises to bring together celebrities, military leaders, and business figures, all united in their support for the military community. This event not only raises critical funds but also awareness; continuing to highlight the sacrifices made by service members and their families.

Last year alone, Hope For The Warriors positively impacted over 29,100 individuals, a clear indicator of its significant role within the veteran community. Through testimonials, such as from a military family who appreciated the dignity preserved during their time of need, and a veteran who found solace and support as a single mother, Hope For The Warriors' direct impact and essential support are vividly brought to life.

Hope For The Warriors operates under Six Domains of Well-Being—financial wellness, life roles, physical wellness, emotional wellness, social support, and community connection—emphasizing a holistic approach to the well-being of military families. This model integrates mental health support into every aspect of its programs, ensuring a foundation of stability and strength for those it serves.

As Hope For The Warriors continues to evolve and expand its reach, it remains a beacon of hope and support, steadfast in its mission to aid those who have sacrificed so much for their country. Through ongoing programs, special events, and a committed network of supporters, Hope For The Warriors is more than just an organization; it's a lifeline for the military community.

With a vision focused on adapting to the evolving needs of service members and their families, HOPE's goals are as dynamic as the community it serves.
